The Legacy of Henri Temianka:
Musician, Writer, Educator

HENRI TEMIANKA (1906 – 1992) lived an extraordinary life as a violinist, conductor, writer, and educator. From his early solo career in Europe to his work as founder of the Paganini Quartet and California Chamber Symphony, Temianka left an indelible mark on American classical music.

This exhibit displays letters, photographs, and concert programs from Temianka’s long and varied career. The correspondence, archived by his son, Dr. Daniel Temianka, reflects his gregariousness and breadth of interests, as well as the effects of modern European history on musicians and artists, and the growth of classical music in Southern California.
