Anna Leahy and Douglas R. Dechow work and teach at Chapman University. Generation Space: A Love Story (Stillhouse Press, 2017) is their first book together. Anna is the author of the poetry collections Aperture (Shearsman, 2017) and Constituents of Matter (winner of the Wick Poetry Prize, Kent State University Press, 2007). Her book Tumor will be out in fall 2017 from Bloomsbury's Object Lessons series, and Conversing with Cancer, her co-authored book with health communication scholar Lisa Sparks, is forthcoming in Peter Lang's Language as Social Action series. Doug is the co-author of The Craft of Librarian Instruction (with Julie Artman and Jeff Sundquist, ALA 2016) and SQEAK: A Quick Trip to Objectland (Addison-Wesley Professional, 2001) and the co-editor with mathematician Daniele Struppa of Intertwined: The Work and Influence of Ted Nelson (Springer, 2015). See more at www.generationspace.com.

Refreshments will be served.
