Need help with pagination in Word 2007?

The method below was able to fix a problem that one student was having to prevent page numbers from showing up on the title and signature pages.

Double click on the footer on the very first page.
Up in your ribbon bar at the top, you’ll see a design tab.
Check the box that says “Different First Page.”
If you still have a page number, then delete it directly from the footer.

So that should take care of the first page.

On the second page, double click (on a committee member name or anything else) to get back into the main content of the page (header and footer editing should disappear).

Up on the ribbon bar, go to the Page Layout tab
Click “Breaks” and select “Next page” from the drop-down to allow for different pagination on the following page OR select “Continuous” to allow for different pagination starting with the page you are on.
